

Let's go to beach!

Yeah!!!

Base on this situation, my colleague make a group discussion for me.

I feels very frustrate and nervous about it. Surprisingly, none of them suggest me leave because they understand I don't have much experience for teaching.

In order to change the bad teaching impression, some experienced teachers give me a suggestion to try it out:

Field-trip to Safari

Go to beach and clean out trash

I take my students to Safari Park to get more understanding about how natural affect each animals's behavior and living habit.

I gives students two options to discover the park:

I take students to visit one by one

Give a park map and let student discover themselves
